message from our chairman

It is with great pleasure that on behalf of The Board and Management of Give Where You Live I present the 2012 / 2013 Annual Report.

I am pleased to report that the 2012 / 2013 financial year has been an outstanding one for Give Where You Live. Despite facing a number of challenges within the local, state and national economies, Give Where You Live has been able to increase its underlying income from the previous financial year by 8.4%.

Most notable in this result was the performance of our Workplace Giving program which, for the first time in a 12 month period, exceeded $1 million. This is truly a remarkable performance and great credit should be given to the 2012 Loaned Executives who worked tirelessly to achieve this result. During the year we also further established two new fundraising appeals in our Mayday and Feed Geelong appeals. We are confident that both of these appeals have now established themselves in the minds of the Geelong Community and will continue to grow.

As part of our Strategic Plan the Board of Give Where You Live made our future sustainability a priority. For nearly 60 years the Geelong Community and the Community Services Sector have had the benefit of the funds raised by our organisation. As the current custodians of Give Where You Live, the Board felt that future generations should also be assured of such support. We therefore made building the Give Where You Live Foundation a priority.

I am very pleased to say that over the past 12 months our Foundation has grown by approximately 70%. This result has been achieved through the strong growth achieved by our investment advisers, the sale of a property and a generous bequest received from the Ian Woolnough Estate. The Woolnough bequest has now become our Foundation's first named sub-fund and significantly helped our balance to exceed $2.2 million.

As part of the strong governance structure of Give Where You Live, the Board has developed clear succession plans. As part of those plans I will be stepping down as Chairman but continuing on the Board for a further 12 months. The Vice Chairman, Murray Boyd, will assume the position of Chairman. Murray has made an enormous contribution to the organisation and I wish him every success in this role.

My time as Chairman of Give Where You Live has been challenging and rewarding. I would like to thank all of my fellow Board Members for their work and the support they have offered me during my time as Chairman, as well as express my gratitude for the time they generously volunteer.

Achieving such a result cannot occur without the dedication, focus and hard work of both the Board and staff. On behalf of the Board I offer my gratitude and appreciation to all of the staff of Give Where You Live for their continued hard work and contributions and congratulate them on the result achieved.

Finally I would like to acknowledge the extremely valuable contribution of our CEO Bill Mithen. Bill is now in his third year in the role, and during this period he has lifted the operations of Give Where You Live, in every aspect, to a significantly high level. As Chairman it has been an absolute privilege to have led this organisation, in concert with Bill, over the past two years.

Mike O'Brien

Chairman
Give Where You Live Board

Chairman's Award

The Chairman's Award is an opportunity to acknowledge the efforts of an individual or group who assist Give Where You Live with its mission to support its local community. It is awarded annually by the current Give Where You Live Chairman in consultation with the Chief Executive Officer and staff.

I am pleased to announce that the recipient of the 2012 / 2013 Give Where You Live Chairman's Award is Chris Davies, Managing Director of Evologic Technologies.

Chris has demonstrated outstanding dedication, commitment and service to Give Where You Live over many years.

message from our chief executive officer

The 2012 / 2013 financial year sees the completion of the first year of the Give Where You Live inaugural Strategic Plan. I am pleased to say that based on the key metrics of the plan we are well and truly on track.

Financially we committed to increasing our fundraising activities and increase the number of income streams of the organisation. Throughout the year we further established our Mayday and Feed Geelong appeals, but we also launched our Businesses Investing in Geelong program or BIG as it has become known. This program was established to assist the growing numbers of small to medium businesses in their corporate social responsibility efforts. Our ultimate goal is to have over 500 small to medium Geelong businesses participating in the program and we are well on the way.

We also committed to growing our Foundation to improve our sustainability as well as distributing $6 million in grants over the three years of the Plan. Our investments have grown strongly over the year and through the distribution to our Community Partners of $1.75 million in June we are on track to achieve our goals.

Importantly, however, our Strategic Plan was not only focused on the financial outcomes of the organisation. We committed to providing greater leadership to the region and improving our own capability particularly in the areas of Corporate Social Responsibility and effective and impactful grant making.

We re-developed our grant making framework during the year and as a result will be improving our reporting on the impact and outcomes of the grants that we issued. As part of this re-development, and for the first time, we issued large multi-year grants to four organisations. These Innovation Grants were issued after a comprehensive expression of interest and application process that ultimately led to an expert advisory panel making recommendations to our Board. It was a best practice process and one that I am sure will ensure our grants have greater impact and efficacy.

Our new grant making strategy includes a focus on developing a regional Collective Impact Project. Our research into a Collective Impact Framework and our desire to pursue this framework has led to the development of a partnership with G21. While the program is continuing to evolve, both organisations are committed to developing a place based project that addresses entrenched disadvantage in the region through improved economic participation and employment. The project will use a Collective Impact framework and Give Where You Live will make a long-term commitment. This is an exciting project for us to be a part of as the Collective Impact framework, and certain elements of the program have been rarely used in an Australian context.

After many years providing assistance to the Emergency Food sector through the Give Where You Live Direct Assistance Voucher Program, we also led the formation of the Geelong Food Assistance Network. With the support of the City of Greater Geelong, Give Where You Live will initially chair this network during its establishment phase with the ultimate goal of handing it back to the sector to manage on an ongoing basis. The goal of the network is to develop practices, systems and partnerships that will allow the sector to deliver more food, to more people more efficiently. Give Where You Live will fund a research project to provide some initial data, however the establishment of the network is a great step forward for the sector.

Give Where You Live continues to enjoy the phenomenal support of the Geelong Community. Individual donors, community partners, workplace givers, BIG participants, corporate donors and sponsors, trusts, foundations, those attending our events, volunteers and loaned executives all make up a very rich tapestry of support for our organisation. To all of you I would like to express our gratitude and appreciation for all your contributions over the year.

Finally, I would also like to extend my thanks and appreciation to the staff of Give Where Live for the support they have shown me and for their hard work and dedication.

message from our 2012 / 2013 campaign leader

It has been a privilege to have represented Give Where You Live in the Geelong business community as the 2012 / 2013 Campaign Leader.

I must admit, when Bill Mithen approached me to be Campaign Leader last year I was a little hesitant – after all, I’m a small business owner, not a high-profile CEO!

Early on, visits to a number of community partners made an enormous impact on me. I found myself in tears during one particular visit. The work of organisations such as Glastonbury Community Services, Bethany Community Support, Geelong Food Relief Centre and Riding for the Disabled is just incredible.

In fact, these early visits were life changing for me. I travelled home and gave my children and husband stronger hugs than usual. I found new appreciation for the upbringing my parents gave me, and my education, my health, my home, my career.

But I felt quite helpless. What can one person do to address the issue of disadvantage in Geelong?

If you’re in business, like I am, there is much you can do. Any business, regardless of its products or services, its size or location, has the opportunity – in fact I’ll go as far to say an obligation - to support the community in which it operates.

Sometimes this is no easy task. In a world where it’s often about productivity and profitability, the willingness of companies to participate in initiatives such as the Give Where You Live BIG program, nominating a valued staff member (or members) to participate in the Loaned Executive program, or to donate goods, services and/or money is significant.

Prior to accepting the role of Campaign Leader, but much more so after moving into the role, I sought to ensure that Corporate Social Responsibility was on the agenda for businesses of all sizes and sectors.

Research has found that Corporate Social Responsibility can be highly valuable to a business:

- It helps build a company’s image and brand, both with staff and customers
- It creates a competitive advantage
- Many businesses have found Corporate Social Responsibility to be more effective than traditional advertising

Give Where You Live’s Corporate Partnerships Manager, Leigh Johnston, says “It’s not about people giving a lot – it’s about a lot of people giving something.”

And that’s a terrific message: no matter who we talk to about the work of Give Where You Live, it’s about conveying that regardless of where a person works or how much they earn, we can give them the opportunity of being part of the solution to disadvantage.

I have experienced firsthand how caring and compassionate the Geelong community is. But there is much more work to be done to alleviate disadvantage in the Geelong region.

Give Where You Live and its community partners have made a permanent impact on me. To Give Where You Live, its passionate staff and amazing community partners, I sincerely thank you for the tremendous privilege.

And although my tenure as Campaign Leader has come to an end, I look forward to continuing my support of Give Where You Live for many, many years to come.
